

Vote Count Observer Training Promo Transcript with Image Descriptions

(Rhythmic music plays throughout)

(Background images throughout are of people voting, voting machines, votes being counted, and people celebrating.)

WOMAN: A lot of people think of elections as pretty simple. People vote, votes are counted, and the winners are announced. But the more you learn about elections, the more you'll understand just how complicated they are and how hard it is to get them right.

The people who run elections have really challenging jobs, especially now when they're under attack by people who don't want every voice to be heard.

You can help prevent errors and help rebuild confidence in our democracy by becoming a vote count observer. Scrutineers provides free training for individuals and groups.

(Text on screen says "Help protect the vote count. Click on the link below to learn more." Link is located below the video player. Background image is of a dark-skinned person looking at a laptop screen that shows six other individuals of various genders and skin tones.)

(Music fades)